Oath to ailing candidates

Medical practitioners authorised

New Delhi, Vaisakha 3, 1889.

April 23, 1967.

Medical Superintendents in charge of hospitals and medical practitioners attending on patients elsewhere have also been authorised by the Election Commission to administer oath to candidates confined to bed in hospitals or elsewhere owing to illness.

In every such case, as soon as the oath or affirmation has been made and signed by the candidate before the authorised person, who should certify this fact on the form, keep a duplicate copy for his record and hand over the original to the candidate. The candidate will have to send the original oath form to the Returning Officer before the time fixed for the scrutiny of nominations.

Candidates at elections to Parliament and State Legislatures including legislative assemblies in Union Territories, are required under the provisions of the Constitution to make and subscribe an oath of allegiance in the prescribed form before some person authorised in this behalf by the Election Commission. So far the Commission had authorised only the Returning and Assistant Returning Officers of the constituency or of the particular election and, in the case of persons confined to a prison or detention camp, the Superintendent or Commandant of the prison or camp, as officers before whom such an oath could be subscribed.

During the last general elections a candidate, being confined to bed in a hospital far away from his constituency, could not take the oath before an authorised officer.
